Got Ducks? ARGENTINA DOES!

Location-Location-Location Our Chascomus Duck Hunting Lodge is just one and a half hours from the Buenos Aires International Airport. No charters, no change of airports, no long van rides, but plenty of ducks! You will be hunting decoyed ducks in pot holes, not passing ducks on a river system. Shoot the afternoon you arrive in B.A.

English Speaking Guides Our guides trained at Burnt Pine Plantation, and our head guide grew up shooting ducks on the Delta Marsh in Canada. Not only do they know duck hunting, but they know how to take care of American clients. Their real work started long before you arrive insuring a successful high volume duck hunting experience.

Fourteen Species of Ducks Argentina doesn't have mallards, but Rosy-bills decoy just as well: Rosy Bill Pochard, Red Shoveler, White Cheeked Pintail, Chiloe Widgeon, Silver, Speckled, Ringed, and Cinnamon Teal, Black Head Ducks, Argentine Ruddy, Yellow Bill Pintail, White faced and Fulvous Whistling Ducks, all may be part of your daily bag.

Accommodations Most operators will house you in good accommodations, but La Plegaria in Chascomus stands out as a notch above all the rest! You will experience great attention to detail in all the delicious food and wine presentations. Stay in private rooms with in-suite facilities, and most have fireplaces.

Price Duck hunts can be stand alone hunts or combined with doves in Cordoba and/or wild quail in Patagonia. For more information go to www.burntpine-travel.com e-mail: chuck@burntpine-travel.com
