

ARGENTINA
MULTIPAL SPECIES BIG GAME & BIRD HUNTING
Estancia El Durazno
2016

El Duranzo is located in the province of San Luis, about 45 miles south of the city of Villa Mercedes, which is west and slightly north of Buenos Aires. It's closer to Mendoza and the Andes than to BA.

The estancia covers 200,000 acres of varied terrain, from semiarid pampas to woodlands full of shrubs, to forests. The property features over a 100 lakes, lagoons and potholes.

Accommodations are set in two different comfortable but simple lodges but with all the amenities and comforts. An open bar policy is featured along with great Argentine wine with meals.

The hunting is for several species of big game, along with very good bird shooting for doves, pigeons, ducks, and perdiz. Hunts are fully guided, and will be conducted by horse, vehicle and stalking.

There are incredible numbers of Red Stags, one hunter counted 400 passing in front of him one morning. The ranch has been fooling with genetic engineering on their deer herd with great results. Bloodlines from New Zealand have been successfully introduced. The buffalo are impressive and as mean as you would expect when pressured.

Doves and pigeons are not the same volume as Cordoba, more like a case a day shoot. The perdiz on the other hand are members of the highest populations in Argentina, and are hunted over dogs.

Five-day hunts are $3990 for the stay & hunt, hunting either a single big game species each day or birds only for the stay (No big game). If you want to hunt multiple big game species each day, add $300 each day for those days' hunted double species. If you have booked a big game hunt, you can add birds at $150 per day bird hunted.
